Financial advice disputes? Our backyard.

Financial planning failures in Australia and around the world are becoming more prevalent and complex, requiring more sophisticated litigation support to ensure successful case outcomes. Despite increasing financial services regulation, many investor groups are going to end up in court. Australia now has over A$1 trillion in funds under management – even isolated cases of poor financial advice can add up to huge dollars with tens of thousands of investors out of pocket.

Successful litigation will often come down to the quality of the experts' reports to determine the extent to which people were inappropriately advised. Having a great partnership between a front line litigator and first rate forensic accountant makes a big difference in pinpointing the extent that any unsuitable advice has played a role in scheme failures as well as quantifying your client's loss.

Vincents' Forensic Accounting specialists are experienced at partnering with legal counsel to provide litigation support and conduct financial investigations for disputes over the quality of financial advice. Our team of forensic accountants is one of Australia's largest and longest established. A wealth of experience and diverse skill-sets ensure we deliver the insight and precision these unique cases demand.
